Near and Far

An exhibition of abstracted landscapes by a couple who love to travel and paint together

The very act of making a journey enhances the senses and presents new and different difficulties. No two landscapes are the same - neither of us can ever be sure how we will approach a painting until the scene is in front of us, then analysing what to keep, lose, enhance. Both content to sit or kneel on a wildly uncomfortable rock ledge to individually respond with experimental mark making, happy to be drawing and painting outside and 'in the zone'.

Each of us is exploring how hills and cliffs may come forward or recede; how the contours of the land provide an illusion of distance; how the tide ebbs and flows, shifting the boundaries of the coastal fringe; how to respond with colour to the ever changing light.

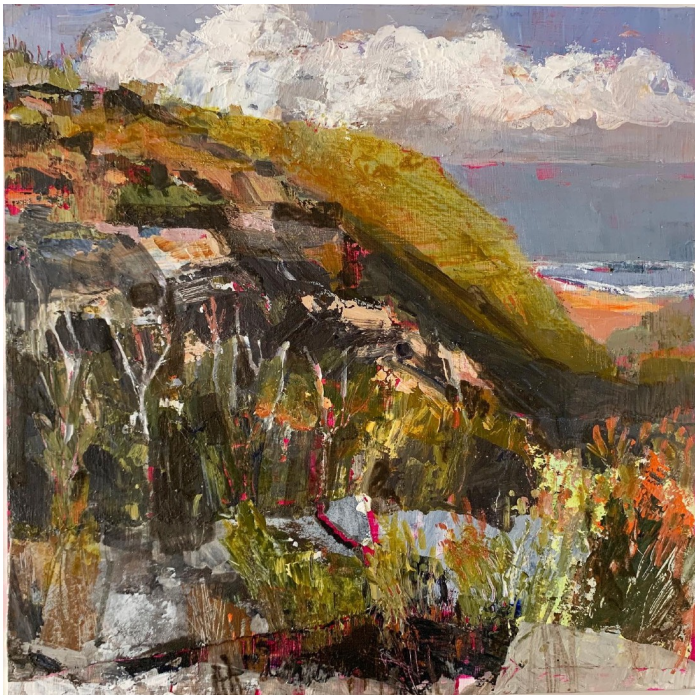

Some of our 'places' are very near to home and some thousands of kms away. Each place very dear to our hearts.

* All works framed in Tasmanian Oak, except the series on page 9 which are available unframed.
