A Song of Travel

A year of travelling, drawing and painting on location with Mike Staniford

Over the past twelve months we have been painting in amazingly diverse landscapes. Contrasting the aqua lakes of New Zealand to the eye popping orange rocks of Central Australia; from the iconic tropical landscape of Lord Howe Island with its pristine lagoon and wonderful palm trees to the Wild Atlantic coast of Cornwall: from light dappled Devon lanes to stormy windswept Dartmoor; from Autumnal Umbrian olive groves to the stunning light of Ancient Sicily. Each place has its own history and magic to offer.

The very act of making a journey enhances the senses and presents new and different difficulties. No two landscapes are the same - neither of us can ever be sure how we will approach a painting until the scene is in front of us, then analysing what to keep, lose, enhance. Both content to sit or kneel on a wildly uncomfortable rock ledge to individually respond with experimental mark making, happy to be drawing and painting outside and 'in the zone'.

Some of our 'places' are very near to home and some thousands of kms away. Each place very dear to our hearts, yet somehow every place is connected. As we are connected to place and each other.

Plein air in Umbria - a moment later the stool broke, no damage except to my dignity!
